NGS Super to help teachers with financial literacy in schools

NGS Super, the industry super fund for non-government schools, has partnered with enRICH KIDS™ to distribute free financial literacy resources to teachers.

enRICH KIDS™ has two successful financial literacy programs – one for primary school children (aged 7–12), and the other for secondary school students. Available on CD, the programs include a series of games, activities and work sheets, along with step-by-step instructions for teachers implementing the program.

“The programs are a wonderful educational resource,” said Anthony Rodwell-Ball, CEO of NGS Super. “We’ll be distributing the resource packs out to over 1,500 non-government schools to assist teachers in sharing important financial information with their students in an enjoyable way.”

Both programs support the curriculum in each Australian state and territory and can be incorporated into the current curriculum. The programs are endorsed by the federal government and appear on the Australian Government’s teaching financial literacy website www.teaching.financialliteracy.gov.au

The enRICH KIDS™ programs contain 10 modules, each based around a key financial message such as goals, saving, budgeting and banking. The programs include teacher-led sessions, student worksheets and assessment tasks.

“At NGS Super we have a strong focus on financial literacy and believe the enRICH KIDS™ programs will provide schools with a valuable and comprehensive teaching resource,” said Mr Rodwell-Ball.

The co-branded NGS Super and enRICH KIDS™ programs were launched at the Association of Heads of Independent Schools of Australia (AHISA) Senior Staff Conference in Perth recently.
