

LET THE GOVERNMENT TOP UP YOUR SUPER

Don't miss out on extra help.

FACT SHEET 1

24 SEPTEMBER 2018

If your total income is less than $52,697 this financial year, you could receive a super bonus from the Government. All you have to do is make an after-tax contribution to your super and meet the eligibility requirements.

Eligibility based on income

If your total income is $37,697 or less, and you put $1,000 into your super as an after-tax contribution, the Government will make the maximum co-contribution to your super of $500.

It would be great to get the full $500, but you don't have to put in the maximum $1,000 to receive a co-contribution from the Government. If you can afford just $200 – the Government will top up your account with $100. A $500 after-tax contribution will earn you a co-contribution of $250.

Will your total income be more than $37,697 but less than $52,697?

If you earn between $37,697 and $52,697, you are still eligible to receive a co-contribution, but at a reduced rate.

The income limits described on this page refer to your total income (which is your assessable income before deductions, certain salary sacrifice and voluntary employer contributions are allowed), plus any reportable fringe benefits. If part of your income comes from self employment, then deductions for carrying on a business are allowed.

The table on page 2 shows some examples of how the co-contribution decreases as income increases.

Please note that this table shows the amount of co-contribution you'll receive for eligible after-tax contributions made after 1 July 2018. For future financial years, the rate at which the co-contribution phases out may change. Please call us on 1300 133 177 if you would like more information.

You can also use the tax office calculator at www.ato.gov.au/Calculators-and-tools/Super-co-contribution-calculator/ to work out how much co-contribution you could get.

Total income including salary sacrifice and reportable fringe benefits $	Maximum approximate co-contribution available $	Personal contribution required to receive maximum co-contribution $

The amounts shown in the table above are approximate amounts and have been rounded to the nearest whole dollar. If you are eligible for a Government co-contribution, the payment will be rounded up to the nearest multiple of 5 cents. The minimum co-contribution payment is $20.

No application needed

The Government does the work for you. Just make sure you make an after-tax contribution that is received by us before the end of the financial year and then lodge your tax return. The Tax Office will work out whether you are entitled to a co-contribution, and if you qualify, the Tax Office will pay the amount into your super account.

Remember, the co-contribution is counted as an after-tax contribution, so no tax is deducted when it's added to your account.

Here are the rules for 2018/19

- You have a *Total Superannuation Balance*¹ less than the Transfer Balance Cap (currently $1.6 million) on 30 June 2018.
- You have not contributed an amount more than your non-concessional contributions cap² for the 2018/19 financial year.
- You must make an after-tax (non-concessional) contribution to your super before 30 June 2019.
- You must lodge an income tax return for 2018/19. The co-contribution will be paid into your super account after your tax return has been assessed.
- You must not intend to claim a tax deduction for your total after-tax contributions for the year.
- Co-contributions will not be paid for before-tax contributions including salary sacrifice contributions, employer contributions, deductible member contributions or spouse contributions.
- Self-employed people are also eligible for co-contributions – to qualify, at least 10% of your total income (in this case, not reduced by any business deductions) must come from employment or carrying on a business or a combination of both.
- You must be younger than 71 at the end of the financial year (30 June 2019).
- You must not hold a temporary resident visa (unless you are a New Zealand citizen or it was a prescribed visa) for any part of the financial year.
- Once you receive the co-contribution, it will be a preserved benefit. That means it can generally be paid to you in cash only when you retire after reaching your preservation age or in some other limited circumstances.

The TSB for Accumulation is generally the withdrawal value at 30 June.

The TSB for the retirement phase is the balance of your Transfer Balance account which is managed by the ATO. You can contact the ATO for your amount.

² If you have more than one fund, all non-concessional contributions made to all of your funds are added together and counted towards the non-concessional contributions cap.

If you are under 65, you may be able to make non-concessional contributions of up to three times the annual non-concessional contributions cap in a single year.

For more information please see our fact sheet Opportunities and limits for super contributions.

CONTRIBUTE TODAY FOR FREEDOM TOMORROW

Who can contribute:

If you're aged 65 or over, you can make after-tax contributions if you're at least gainfully employed on a part-time basis. In short, you must work for at least 40 hours in a period of not more than 30 consecutive days in the financial year in which you plan to make a super contribution.

The work test can be satisfied where you receive remuneration for your efforts. You will need to confirm with the ATO whether your specific arrangements satisfy the work test rules.

Smart moves

- If you start work part-way through the year, you'll have earned less than one full year's income by the end of the financial year, so you may be entitled to receive the full co-contribution amount.
- If you have started working part-time and your income has been reduced, you may now be eligible.

Making a contribution:

You can make contributions into your super account at any time by:

- logging into Member Online at www.ngssuper.com.au/login and accessing your BPAY® details; or
- completing the Lump sum contribution form and returning with a cheque; or
- making regular contributions from your pay by completing the Payroll deductions form and providing it to your employer.

Beat the 30 June deadline:

We must receive your after-tax contribution before 30 June 2019 for you to be eligible for a co-contribution for the 2018/19 financial year. Don't leave it until the last minute: always allow some time for posting and processing. Otherwise, it will be counted for the next financial year.
