

MAKE SPOUSE CONTRIBUTIONS WORK FOR YOU+

Some things are best done together

FACT SHEET 3

29 SEPTEMBER 2017

Making contributions on behalf of your spouse can be beneficial for your combined retirement savings.

Of course, how you structure your super as a couple will depend on your personal circumstances, your combined income and what you have in mind for when you retire. You may also build your spouse's super savings by splitting your own contributions with them. For more details on this, please see the Split super contributions with your spouse fact sheet available at www.ngssuper.com.au/PDS.

Spouse contributions

As a member of NGS Super, you can establish a member account in the Fund for your spouse. You can then make contributions on behalf of your spouse to this account. These contributions are known as spouse contributions. Spouse contributions must be made from your after-tax income and paid to NGS Super by cheque.

You can make contributions on behalf of your spouse if:

- they are aged 65 or younger, or
- they are between the ages of 65 and 70, on the condition that they have worked at least 40 hours over 30 consecutive days in the financial year in which the contribution is made.

Once your spouse turns 70, you can no longer make contributions on their behalf.

In addition, from 1 July 2017, individuals will not be entitled to the tax offset when:

- the spouse receiving the contribution has exceeded their non-concessional contributions cap for the relevant year, or
- the spouse has a total superannuation balance equal to or more than the general transfer balance cap (currently $1.6 million) immediately before the start of the financial year in which the contribution was made.

If you make contributions for your spouse, you may also be eligible to claim a tax offset on these contributions, depending on your spouse's income. The maximum annual tax offset is 18% of a maximum of $3,000 in spouse contributions (i.e. a maximum of $540).

Some terms explained

There is a legal definition of spouse which refers to either:

- a person with whom the member is in a relationship that is registered under certain state or territory laws (this includes marriages and registered same-sex relationships), or
- a person of the same or of a different sex, who lives with the member on a genuine domestic basis in a relationship as a couple (known as a de facto spouse).

If you're after more information about how the Australian Taxation Office (ATO) defines this relationship and the eligibility conditions for the spouse super tax offset, contact the ATO on 13 10 20 or refer to the ATO website www.ato.gov.au.

GIVE YOUR SPOUSE'S RETIREMENT SAVINGS A BOOST

Tax offset

The offset available is dependent on the receiving spouse's income. If the receiving spouse's income is:

Receiving spouse's annual income	Tax offset available
Less than the low income threshold : $37,000.	Then the contributing spouse will receive the full offset which is:  18% x contribution amount (contribution up to $3,000)
More than the low income threshold and less than the cut-out income threshold: $40,000.	The offset is reduced for every $1 that the receiving spouse's income is over the low income threshold. Therefore, 18% of the lesser of either: <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>▪ the contribution amount</li><li>or</li><li>▪ $3,000 – (spouse salary – low income threshold)</li></ul>
More than the cut-out income threshold	Then no offset is available

The worked examples below show how making a spouse contribution works in practice:

To get an understanding of how spouse contributions work in practice, let's take a look at an example:

Dave has a salary of $70,000 per year (before any deductions, including tax).

Dave would like to make a contribution into his spouse's superannuation account so they can benefit from the spouse contribution tax offset.

Scenario 1: A contribution for a non-working spouse

If Dave contributes $3,000 after tax into his spouse's super account, he is eligible to receive a $540 tax offset.

18% x contribution amount

$$18\% \times $3,000$$

$$= $540$$

If Dave contributes $1,000 after tax into his spouse's super account, he is eligible to receive a $180 tax offset.

18% x contribution amount

$$18\% \times $1,000$$

$$= $180$$

Scenario 2: A contribution for a spouse with assessable income of $38,200

If Dave contributes $3,000 after-tax into his spouse's super account, he is eligible to claim a tax offset for the calculation that results in the lesser amount:

18% x contribution amount

$$= 18\% \times $3,000$$

$$= $540$$

or

18% x [contribution - (Spouse salary - low income threshold)]

$$= 18\% \times [$3,000 - ($38,200 - $37,000)]$$

$$= 18\% \times [$3,000 - $1,200]$$

$$= $324$$

Therefore, Dave can claim a tax offset of $324.

Scenario 3: A contribution for a spouse with assessable income of $38,200

If Dave contributes only $1,000 after tax into his spouse's super account, he is eligible to claim a tax offset for the calculation that results in the lesser amount:

18% x contribution amount

$$= 18\% \times $1,000$$

$$= $180$$

or

18% x (Spouse salary - low income threshold)

$$= 18\% \times ($38,200 - $37,000)$$

$$= 18\% \times $1,200$$

$$= $216$$

Therefore, Dave can claim a tax offset of $180.
