

YOUR SUPER AND THE AGE PENSION

Every little bit helps.

FACT SHEET 11

1 JULY 2017

Even if you have super, you may still qualify for at least a part Age Pension from the government.

Even though Australians have had compulsory super since 1992, many of us will qualify for, and may need to rely on, an Age Pension to some degree in retirement.

To be eligible for the Age Pension, you must be 65 or older. From 1 July 2017 Age Pension age will be 65 years and 6 months. The table below shows the increasing Age Pension age depending on an individual's birth date.

Age Pension age for those born after June 1952
Commencement Date	New Pension age	Affects people born
1 July 2017	65.5	From 1 July 1952 to 31 Dec 1953
1 July 2019	66	From 1 Jan 1954 to 30 June 1955
1 July 2021	66.5	From 1 July 1955 to 31 Dec 1956
1 July 2023	67	From 1 Jan 1957 onwards

From 1 July 2023, the government has indicated that it intends to gradually further increase the eligibility age for the Age Pension to 70 years (by 1 July 2035).

Eligibility for the Age Pension

There are a number of eligibility criteria for the Age Pension. In addition to age and residency criteria, you need to satisfy:

1. an income test, and
2. an assets test.

The test that gives you the lower pension amount – which may be zero – is the one that applies.¹

The way the income and assets tests apply to super can be complex. It can be a good idea to seek advice from a financial planner before you retire. Take the time to talk to an NGS financial planner, who can help you with a range of things, including your retirement planning. Contact us using our online enquiry form at www.ngssuper.com.au/financialadvice or phone on 1300 133 177 to make an appointment.

You can also find more information by visiting the Australian Government Department of Human Services website www.humanservices.gov.au. The Government's Money Smart website – www.moneysmart.gov.au also contains a range of retirement planning tools which you can use to get started.

The cost of retirement

The Association of Superannuation Funds of Australia Limited (ASFA) regularly calculates the cost of living for retirees.

The estimates for March 2017 quarter are that a comfortable (but not luxurious) retirement will cost a single person $1,675 a fortnight, and a couple $2,300. This assumes you own your own home and are relatively healthy.

You can check what budget you will need in retirement with the ASFA Retirement Standard Calculator (on the Resources section of their website www.superannuation.asn.au).

¹ A different regime applies if you are permanently blind or eligible for a disability pension.

Income test

Limits for full and part pension

Family situation	For full pension (per fortnight)	For part pension (per fortnight)
Single	Up to $168*	Less than $1,944.60
Couple (combined)	Up to $300*	Less than $2,978.40
Couples separated by illness (couple combined)	Up to $300*	Less than $3,853.20

* The pension will reduce by 50 cents for each $1 of income over this amount.

As you can see from the table, you can generally earn a small amount of income and still qualify for the full Age Pension. If you earn more, you may still qualify for a part Age Pension.

For the purpose of the government Age Pension income test, account-based income streams will be assessed in one of two ways depending on whether you:

- were in receipt of a Centrelink entitlement as at 1 January 2015 and have been in continuous receipt of the entitlement since this date; and
- had and continue to have an Income stream that commenced prior to 1 January 2015.

If yes: your income stream will continue to be assessed under the return of purchase price rules.

If no: you will have your income stream balance treated as a financial asset and subject to the deeming rates.

From 1 July 2017, the deeming rates that apply are:

- 1.75% up to a certain value depending on whether you are single or part of a couple, and then 3.25% for any financial investments above the lower value threshold. For details of the dollar value thresholds please refer to: www.humanservices.gov.au/customer/enablers/deeming.

The return of purchase price rule means your assessable income for your income stream will be your gross annual payment reduced by a deductible amount. This deductible amount is calculated by dividing the starting account balance of your income stream by your life expectancy at that time.

Assets test

Limits for full and part pension (as at 1 July 2017)

Family situation	Lower limit* for full pension		Upper limit for part pension
	Homeowners	Non-homeowners	Homeowners	Non-homeowners
Single	$253,750	$456,750	$550,000	$753,000
Couple (combined)	$380,500	$583,500	$827,000	$1,030,000
Illness separated (couple combined)	$380,500	$583,500	$973,000	$1,176,000
One partner eligible (couple combined)	$380,500	$583,500	$827,000	$1,030,000

The government expects that retirees who hold assets outside their super will liquidate some of those assets to support themselves in retirement (for example, by selling a property or shares). Accordingly, there is an assets test for the Age Pension as well.

There are different assets tests for homeowners and those who don't own a home, with extra allowable amounts for retirement village and granny flat residents.

Individuals that hold assets that are valued higher than the lower limit amounts shown in the Assets test table, reduce the Age Pension by $3 per fortnight for every $1,000 above that amount (single and couple combined).

The asset test limits are updated in January, March, July and September each year due to indexation.

Under the assets test, the total value of your superannuation is combined with the total value of your other assets, such as jewellery, cars, boats and shares to arrive at a total asset value. You can't reduce your assets by giving them away. Any assets you 'gift' that exceed $10,000 per financial year, limited to $30,000 over 5 financial years will still count towards the assets test.

Any lump-sum super you have will be counted as an asset, including the balance of any account-based pensions such as your NGS Income account. Some older types of pensions, like annuities or term allocated pensions are not fully assessed as assets. For further information please refer to the Australian Government Department of Human Services website www.humanservices.gov.au or discuss with a financial planner.

Preparing for retirement

Preparing for retirement can be a worrying time so getting all the information will help you feel in control. Speaking with a financial planner can be one of the best ways to get your super organised before you retire. Our website has a range of information about the Income account we offer, including articles, fact sheets, calculators and more. You can print them off and read them in your own time.

An NGS Income account is tax effective as all investment earnings are tax free. Investment earnings in the Transition to retirement account are taxed at 15%. Additionally, if you are age 60 or over, your Income account payments are also tax free. We also offer free financial seminars where you can come along and get some great ideas about managing your money in retirement amongst other things. For seminar dates or to make a booking, visit our website www.ngssuper.com.au.

Confused by concession cards?

There are three types of concession cards available to seniors:

- The Pensioner Concession Card, which you are entitled to if you receive a full or part Age Pension. In addition to reduced costs for healthcare, this entitles you to a range of discounts which vary depending on the State or Territory in which you live. Generally, you pay less for property and water rates, utility bills and public transport, which is why this is considered a valuable card and why some people try to organise their affairs so they are eligible for the Age Pension, even if they only receive as little as a dollar a week.
- The Commonwealth Seniors Health Card provides a discount on prescription medication and health-related services for those who are of pension age but do not qualify for the Age Pension. Your state or territory government and local council may offer you further benefits.

Eligibility for this card is means tested. You must have an annual adjusted taxable income of less than $52,796 (singles), $84,472 (couples combined), or $105,592 (couples combined who are separated due to ill health). The income test limit will increase for each dependent child you care for.

Due to changes to the Pension test on 1 January 2017, individuals who had the Age Pension cancelled may now be in receipt of a Commonwealth Seniors Health Card that is not income tested.

The balance of your account based income stream will count toward the Income test using the deeming rules if it:

1. commenced from 1 January 2015; or
2. is owned by someone granted a Commonwealth Seniors Health Card on or after 1 January 2015, and
3. the balance of your partner's account based income stream will be included if he/she is aged 60 or more.

Read more about the Commonwealth Seniors Health Card at www.humanservices.gov.au.

- The Seniors Card entitles older Australians to a range of benefits provided by commercial and retail businesses. The card is not means tested, and is free of charge. Eligibility criteria and benefits vary slightly across Australia, but you are generally eligible once you turn 60 if you have retired or are working limited hours.

Read more about the Seniors Card at www.australia.gov.au.
